

Schulich Distinguished Visiting Scholar
Call for Expressions of Interest (2014-2015)

The Schulich Distinguished Visiting Scholar, an academic with an established record of scholarly achievement, will be expected to enliven the intellectual life of the faculty by participating in our scholarly activities (giving a public seminar or lecture) and by teaching one course (to be determined in consultation with the Dean). He or she will be expected to spend a minimum of one term (either September through December or January through April) at the Schulich School of Law at Dalhousie University and may spend the academic year.

The Schulich Visiting Scholar will receive a stipend of up to $20,000.

About the Schulich School of Law

The Schulich School of Law plays an extraordinary role in the fabric of Canadian legal education. We are the most nationally representative law school in the country, with a large number of students drawn from and returning to every region. We graduate leaders, with alumni holding every form of governmental office, teaching in most Canadian law schools, innovating in the provision of private and public sector legal services, advancing policy in the executive branch of government, rendering decisions on courts across the country, and offering service to non-governmental bodies, and non-profit and community organizations. We have always been marked by our commitment to unselfish public service. We are rooted in our university context. We embrace the interdisciplinary opportunity of working in a university, we value the creation and dissemination of new knowledge, and we are firmly committed to students and to teaching and learning excellence.

We care about the history of the place where we find our roots. We are Atlantic Canadians – conscious of the difference we make to law reform, adjudication, legal service, and community engagement at home. We value the contributions of the founding communities in this province, the Mi'kmaq Nation, Acadians, African Nova Scotians, and British, and we open our doors to the world.
